

Excerpt from In the Valley of Decision The place was Herald Square in New York city. The time was one night after a Presidential election. Manhattan was pulsating with political excitement. One vast, seething mass of people congested Herald Square. There were thousands on thousands of them, some shouting, some blowing horns, some watching the election returns which were displayed in front of the New York Herald Building. The young man had found a place to sit slightly above the crowd and where it flowed past him on every side. From his vantage ground he looked out on the restless sea of people. He was thrilling to the finger tips with the vivid human sense of it all. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
